

Edgar Larrea, Ph.D
Assistant Professor of Spanish
elarrea@umes.edu

Degree(s)/Certificates

- Ph.D. in Spanish: Latin-American Literature University of South Carolina
- M.A. in Applied Linguistics: Teaching Spanish as a Foreign Language Universidad Antonio de Nebrija (Madrid, Spain)
- B.A. in Education & Licenciatura in ESL Universidad Nacional Mayor de San Marcos (Lima, Peru)

Areas of Expertise

- Spanish as a Foreign Language in the US
- Spanish for Heritage students
- Spanish for Healthcare and Business professions
- Online teaching and design of Spanish college courses
- The Novel of Political Violence and The Indigenista novel in Peru,
- The Latin-American boom, Contemporary Latin-American Literature and Culture
- Foreign language teaching methodology
- Spanish Syntax & Phonology, Second Language Acquisition
- ESL

Mini-Bio

Prof. Larrea has taught Spanish language, culture and FL methodology as well as ESL courses for over 25 years in Peru, Spain and the US. He is currently working on a Basic Spanish textbook for American college students and a book on the novel of political violence in Peru during the years 1980-2000.

Publications, screenings, exhibitions, public works, etc.

Recent Publications:

- "Primera muerte de María: Subalternidad, Exilio y Mundos Distópicos en la narrativa de Jorge Eduardo Eielson." Revista de Crítica Literaria Latinoamericana, Año XLVIII, No 96. Lima-Boston, 2do semestre de 2022, pp. 53-67
- Review of Los años de espanto: 39 relatos de los años de violencia, By Mark Cox. Revista de Crítica iteraria Latinoamericana Año XLVIII, No 96. Lima-Boston, 2do semestre de 2022, pp. 381-384