Mini-Bio

At UMES I work in the area of student success and support in the Center for Access and Academic Success, and also teach in the English Department as a Lecturer for Basic Composition. I earned my Bachelors from Salisbury University in Film and Creative Writing, and my Masters from East Carolina University in Multicultural & Transnational Literatures with a Graduate Certificate in Teaching English as a Second Language. I am passionate about providing support and instruction that is student-centered, and will always look for new approaches to impact our students' success in a positive way.
