Douglass Notes

Director's Chair

Sharon D. Brooks
Acting Director of Library Services

Welcome to spring semester. We are glad to have students, staff and faculty back on campus. The library has been busy over the winter break with a myriad of activities. The library homepage has a new look to enhance access to library resources and services. Our staff have attended training on the operational aspects of librarianship. We have had our first LIBR100 Information Literacy course in Canvas, and there have been staff retirements.

This term, we look forward to providing both in-person research instructional classes and video recorded instruction for hybrid and online classes.

As we begin a new semester, the policies of wearing face masks and maintaining social distancing are still required in the library. This ensures the health and safety of all patrons and staff.

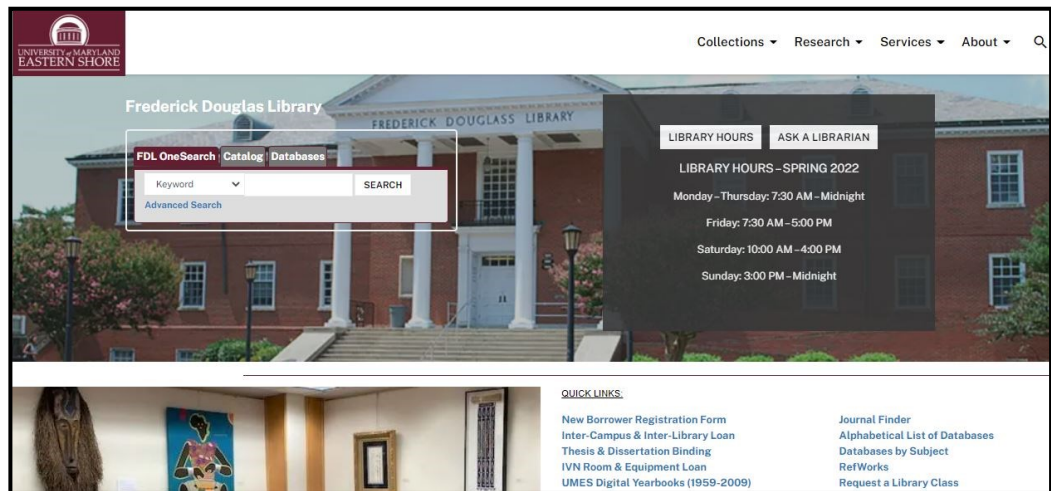

Have a safe and successful semester!

Required:

1. Face masks
2. Social distancing

Navigating the Library Website Redesign

The library is pleased to announce the redesign of its homepage. Content is now organized under four horizontal tabs along the top menu bar. The Collections tab links to each of the five library departments. The Research tab allows easy access to the catalog, databases, and research and citation guides. The Services tab links to course reserves in controlled digital lending and detailed information on Inter-Campus and Inter-Library Loan.

To improve the research experience, the landing page highlights a single search box - FDL OneSearch - that gives users the capability to search across media, including books (both physical and ebooks) and journal articles from many databases at the same time. Please note that ProQuest databases are not included. Results can be expanded or filtered to retrieve a subset; for example, full text and peer-reviewed articles, or all ebooks. FDL OneSearch also provides smartlinks to journals for which the library has a digital subscription. When the journal title is entered as a keyword, it will appear on the results page with a lightbulb icon that will link to the full text available in a database or on a publisher's website.

Another service that provides digital access to the library's full A-Z journal title list is Journal Finder found under Quick Links. Entering the title or ISSN of the journal will produce a list of vendors that provide access, as well as the type and dates of coverage. Database links can still be found in both the alphabetical and subject lists found under the Research tab or Quick Links. Please note that the 17 research guide pages that comprise Databases by Subject have been updated to include citation information and new e-resources.

We hope that this reorganization and streamlining of content will enhance navigation through the circulating, media, reference, serials, and special collections departments, as well as the library's many digital resources and services.

Degree Program:

Dawn Davis, Library Services Technician, started her second online semester at Central Carolina Community College towards her AAS degree in Library Science.

Library Retirements

The Frederick Douglass Library said goodbye to two long-time and valued employees in 2021.

Marvella Rounds

Ms. Rounds retired in June after 50 years of service in the library. She started her career as a library technician and after getting her Master's in Library Science, was a cataloger for many years before recently becoming Head of Reference. When asked what the library was like when she joined, Ms. Rounds explained that there were only four staff members, and the addition to the building had not yet been made. She has loved being a member of the library profession and has most enjoyed working with library staff.

Rena Finney

Ms. Finney retired in December. She worked at UMES for 32 years, 31 of which were in the library. She served on many committees and participated in various programs at the university, which made her proud to be a member of the UMES family.

Journal Finder: A-Z Journal Title List

Journal Search

To determine whether the library has digital access to a specific journal, enter the journal title or ISSN into Journal Finder to retrieve a list of vendors who provide access, along with type and dates of coverage. Journal Finder is where the library's full A-Z journal list can be accessed. This feature also allows the user to search for journals by subject area (agriculture sciences, chemistry, etc.) and by provider. Selecting provider allows the user to see the full journal title list in EBSCO or ProQuest databases.
